Alan Freed and his Rock 'N Roll aggregation

By ROSE PELSWICK

IT'S REAL cool, man, cool, at all Loew neighborhood theatres this week where you can dig Alan Freed and his rock 'n' roll gang in a film called, natch, "Rock, Rock, Rock."

This one is strictly for the pony-tail, juke-box and sideburn set, a collection of r & r bands, singers, dancers and solo instrumentalists. There's also a story about a couple of slick chicks and a smooth Joe who wins a talent contest on Freed's TV show, but the teenage triangle serves mainly to get the jam sessions on the road.

Featured are Freed himself and his Rock 'n' Roll band with Big Al Sears and Freddie Mitchell. Specialties are provided by Frankie Lyman and The Teenagers, La Vern Baker, Chuck Berry, The Moonglows, the Flamingos, The Three Chuckles, Cirino and the Bowties, Johnny Burnette Trio, Connie Francis, Ivy Schulman, Jimmy Cavallo's House Rockers, and the Coney Island Kids.

And the jumpin' stompin' tunes, no less than 20, include "We're Gonna Rock Tonight," "Rock, Pretty Baby," "I'm Not a Juvenile Delinquent," "I Never Had a Sweetheart," "The Things Your Heart Needs," "You Can't Catch Me," "The Big Beat,"

"Would I Be Crying?" "Thanks To You," "Little Blue Wren," "Lonesome Train," "Over and Over Again," "Tra La La," "Ever Since I Can Remember," "Baby Baby," "Won't You Give Me a Chance?" "Right Now, Right Now," "Right From the Start," "Rock, Rock, Rock" and "Rock 'n' Roll Boogie."
